

WINTER NEWS FROM ST. MORITZ

Bastion of Alpine hospitality, Badrutt's Palace, reopens for the winter season

10 December 2020 | Iconic and innovative, Badrutt's Palace has reopened its doors with 40 newly renovated rooms and suites, culinary highlights and new spoiling winter packages for guests to enjoy their stay to the fullest. Leveraging the hotel's spacious layout, plentiful facilities, expansive grounds and close proximity to the slopes, the team has been carefully refining the offering to protect the health and safety of guests and staff, while ensuring the much-loved magic of the Palace remains throughout the winter season.

The hotel has adapted its daily operations to ensure compliance with the set of federal and cantonal COVID related safety rules. Moreover, the Palace has taken further steps to reassure its guests – just to name a few: thermal imaging cameras have been installed at guest and staff access points, all hotel staff have been tested prior to the opening, and frequent tests are planned throughout the entire season.

CULINARY HIGHLIGHTS | Newly-appointed Executive Chef Maxime Luvara brings with him extensive international experience and an innovative spirit to create a progressive gastronomic journey to suit every palette. Badrutt's Palace Hotel is home to an eclectic variety of acclaimed restaurants. Awarded a second Michelin star earlier this year, Andreas Caminada's IGNIV promises inspired sharing dishes and contemporary interiors designed by Patricia Urquiola. Matsuhisa – located in what was formerly Europe's first indoor tennis hall – is the signature Japanese-Peruvian restaurant by the eponymous and world-famous chef Nobuyuki Matsuhisa. At this time, restaurants are only open to hotel guests but the Palace looks forward to welcoming external diners again in the not too distant future.

SPOILING WINTER PACKAGES | For ski-lovers wanting a refreshing dose of the purest elements in utmost privacy, the palace will introduce a remote mountain touring experience, where guests will be whisked to some of the most secluded skiing destinations in the Engadin valley by helicopter, accompanied by a knowledgeable local guide. Spa lovers longing for a wellbeing escape following a challenging year, can opt for the soothing and spoiling Spa Inclusive break. Alternatively, for guests seeking a second home to work remotely, Badrutt's Palace has introduced special amenities and savings for long term guests staying 28 nights or more, including discounts on laundry, complimentary breakfast and 24-hour butler service for those who have booked suite accommodation.

With record levels of snowfall experienced this December, St. Moritz promises from the very start of this winter season to be a truly magnificent wonderland!
